MD 13 Calculation of family credit abatement

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of section MD 1 to determine the amount of a person's family credit abatement for an entitlement period.

Formula

(2) The formula is—full-year abatement × days ÷ 365.

Definition of items in formula

(3) In the formula,—

(a) full-year abatement is,—

(i) if the person has no spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner during the entitlement period, and the person's family scheme income for the relationship period containing the entitlement period is more than $42,700, 27 cents for each complete dollar of the excess; or

(ii) if the person has a spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner during the entitlement period, and the person's family scheme income, the family scheme income of their spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner, or the sum of those incomes for the relationship period containing the entitlement period is more than $42,700, 27 cents for each complete dollar of the excess:

(b) days is the number of days in the entitlement period excluding the days of any calendar months in which the person receives protected family tax credit as described in section MD 14.

When 70-day period crosses 2 tax years and parental tax credit paid in instalments

(4) If a person who qualifies under section MC 2 (Who qualifies for entitlements under family scheme?) receives instalments of the parental tax credit in a 70-day period that crosses 2 tax years, the formula is applied so that—

(a) instalments of the parental tax credit received in the first tax year are abated against the person's family scheme income, the family scheme income of their spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner, or the sum of those incomes for that tax year; and

(b) instalments of the parental tax credit received in the second tax year are abated against the person's family scheme income, the family scheme income of their spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner, or the sum of those incomes for that tax year.

When 70-day period crosses 2 tax years and parental tax credit paid in lump sum

(4B) If a person who qualifies under section MC 2 has a 70-day parental entitlement period that crosses 2 tax years and the person receives a lump sum payment of the parental tax credit for the tax year of the birth, then—

(a) an additional amount of parental tax credit abatement for the tax year of the birth is calculated under section MD 16, based on the number of days that are—

(i) in the parental entitlement period; and

(ii) in an entitlement period in the tax year following the tax year of the birth; and

(b) the formula in subsection (2) should not be used to calculate an amount of parental tax credit abatement for the days described in paragraph (a), except for the purposes of determining the amount of parental tax credit abatement for the single day described in section MD 16(3)(a)(ii).

Order in Council increasing amount

(5) In subsection (3)(a), the amounts appearing as the amount of the threshold may be increased as prescribed by the Governor-General by Order in Council under section MF 7 (Orders in Council).

Defined in this Act: amount, civil union partner, de facto partner, entitlement period, family credit abatement, family scheme income, parental tax credit, protected family tax credit, relationship period, spouse, tax year

(4) A person entitled to a FamilyBoost tax credit for a tax credit quarter may apply for a refund of that credit under section 41C of the Tax Administration Act 1994 if, subject to subsection (5),—

(a) the person has met their obligation to file a return of income by the due dates set out in section 37 of that Act; and

(b) the person's spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner (relationship partner), if applicable, has also met their obligation to file a return of income by the due dates set out in section 37 of that Act.

Late filing of income tax return

(5) If a person or their relationship partner has failed to meet their obligation to file a return of income by the due dates set out in section 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994, the person may be treated as complying with that section for the purposes of subsection (4) once they have filed the outstanding return or returns that would enable the Commissioner to assess their tax credit income under section MH 4.

One tax credit per couple

(6) If a person entitled to a FamilyBoost tax credit under subsection (1) has a relationship partner, the relationship partner is not also entitled to a FamilyBoost tax credit for the tax credit quarter, regardless of whether the licensed early childhood service fees are incurred by both the person and their relationship partner.

Separated persons

(7) Subsection (6) does not apply for a tax credit quarter if the person is separated from their relationship partner and does not have a relationship partner at the end of that quarter.

Deceased estate

(8) Despite subsection (4), when a person entitled to a FamilyBoost tax credit dies before applying for a refund of that credit, the trustee of that person's estate may apply for a refund of the FamilyBoost tax credit to which the deceased person was entitled under subsection (1) as if they were that person.

Defined in this Act: abatement amount, amount, caregiver, Commissioner, de facto partner, FamilyBoost tax credit, licensed early childhood service, licensed early childhood service fees, natural person, pay, resident in New Zealand, return of income, tax credit income, tax credit quarter, trustee

Section MH 3(2): amended (with effect on 1 July 2025), on 24 September 2025, by section 4(1) (and see section 4(3) for application) of the Income Tax (FamilyBoost) Amendment Act 2025 (2025 No 50).

Section MH 3(3)(b): amended (with effect on 1 July 2025), on 24 September 2025, by section 4(1) (and see section 4(3) for application) of the Income Tax (FamilyBoost) Amendment Act 2025 (2025 No 50).

MH 4 Meaning of tax credit income

Meaning of tax credit income

(1) The tax credit income of a person entitled to a FamilyBoost tax credit under section MH 3 is the amount determined under subsections (2) to (8).

Person has only reportable income

(2) When the person has only reportable income in a tax credit quarter, the person's tax credit income for the tax credit quarter is the same amount as their reportable income for that quarter.

Person has only other income for income year including tax credit quarter

(3) Subject to subsection (5), the person's tax credit income for a tax credit quarter is 25% of the person's taxable income for an income year when—

(a) the person has filed a return of income for that income year; and

(b) that income year includes the tax credit quarter; and

(c) the person has only other income for that income year.

Person has only other income for income year not including tax credit quarter

(4) If the person has not yet filed a return of income for an income year that includes a tax credit quarter, the Commissioner may determine the person's tax credit income based on the person's most recent return. Subject to subsection (5), the person's tax credit income for that quarter is 25% of the person's taxable income for an income year when—

(a) the most recent return has been filed in either of the 2 income years preceding the tax credit quarter; and

(b) the person has complied with the due dates for filing under section 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994 or is treated as doing so under section MH 3(5).

Person has both reportable income and other income

(5) If the person has both reportable income and other income during an income year, the Commissioner may determine the person's tax credit income based on the person's most recent return of income. The person's tax credit income for the tax credit quarter is the greater of—

(a) the amount under subsection (2), calculated as if the person has only reportable income for that income year; and

(b) the amount under subsection (3) or (4), calculated as if the person has only other income for that income year.

Neither reportable nor other income

(6) Despite subsections (2), (3), (4), and (5), a person's tax credit income is zero if, throughout the 2-year period preceding the income year that includes the person's tax credit quarter, the person has not had an obligation to file a return of income by the dates required under section 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994 and has not derived reportable income for the tax credit quarter.

Combined tax credit incomes

(7) If the person has a spouse, civil union partner, or de facto partner (relationship partner) for the tax credit quarter, the person's tax credit income for the tax credit quarter is the combined total of the person's tax credit income and the tax credit income of their relationship partner for that quarter. For these purposes, their relationship partner's tax credit income is determined under subsections (2) to (6) as if their relationship partner were the person referred to in those subsections.

Separated persons

(8) Subsection (7) does not apply for a tax credit quarter if the person is separated from their relationship partner and does not have a relationship partner at the end of that quarter.

Defined in this Act: amount, de facto partner, FamilyBoost tax credit, other income, income year, quarter, reportable income, return, return of income, tax credit income, tax credit quarter, taxable income

Section MH 4: replaced (with effect on 1 July 2024), on 29 March 2025, by section 112 of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2024–25, Emergency Response, and Remedial Measures) Act 2025 (2025 No 9).

MH 5 FamilyBoost tax credit abatement

What this section does

(1) When a person is entitled to a FamilyBoost tax credit for a tax credit quarter under section MH 3 and the person's tax credit income for that quarter is greater than $35,000, this section calculates the abatement amount for the purposes of section MH 3(3)(b).

Rate of abatement

(2) Subject to subsection (3), the abatement amount is calculated at the rate of 7 cents for each complete dollar of the person's tax credit income for the tax credit quarter that is greater than $35,000.

Zero credit

(3) If the person's tax credit income for the tax credit quarter is $57,286 or more, the abatement amount is $1,560 and the FamilyBoost tax credit amount under section MH 3(2) and (3) is zero.

Defined in this Act: abatement amount, amount, FamilyBoost tax credit, tax credit income, tax credit quarter

MK 4 Amount of tax credit

What this section does

(1) This section sets out how to calculate the amount of a tax credit paid to a fund provider under section MK 3(2) for a tax credit year.

Amount of credit for year

(2) The amount of the tax credit is an amount equal to quarter of a person's total member credit contributions for the tax credit year for all of their complying superannuation funds and KiwiSaver schemes up to a maximum amount of $260.72.

Part-year equivalents: amount of tax credit

(3) Despite subsection (2), if the person meets the requirements of section MK 2 for only part of the tax credit year, the amount of the tax credit is,—

(a) equal to quarter of their total member credit contributions for the tax credit year, if that amount is equal to or less than the part-year maximum amount calculated under subsection (4); or

(b) equal to the part-year maximum amount calculated under subsection (4), if quarter of their total member credit contributions for the tax credit year is greater than the part-year maximum amount calculated under subsection (4).

Part-year equivalents: maximum amount

(4) The part-year maximum amount referred to in subsection (3) is calculated using the formula—

$$$260.72 \times \text{days} \div 365.$$

Definition of item in formula

(5) In the formula, days is the number of days in the tax credit year in which the person meets the requirements of section MK 2.

Parts of years

(6) In subsection (3), a part of the tax credit year may include 1 or more periods of the tax credit year in which the person meets the relevant requirements and, if there are several periods, for the purposes of the item days in the formula, the days in those periods are added together.

(1) This section applies in a tax year when—

(a) a company (company A) stops being part of a group of companies (the former group), because of a change in the ultimate owner of the company, and becomes part of a wholly-owned group of companies (the new group); and

(b) if the former group is a wholly-owned group of companies, the loss balance carried forward from the previous tax year for companies in the former group is more than $1,000,000; and

(c) if the former group is not a wholly-owned group of companies, company A has transferred imputation credits under section OB 83 to a company in the former group.

Sources of liability

(1B) Company A is liable for imputation additional tax under—

(a) subsection (2), if the company has a debit balance in the imputation credit account when the ultimate owner of the company changes:

(b) subsection (4), if the company has an amount of excess entitlement under subsection (5) when the ultimate owner of the company changes.

Liability arising from debit balance

(2) At the time company A stops being part of the former group, it may choose to reduce or eliminate the debit balance by paying imputation additional tax of an amount no greater than the debit balance but, in dealing with the liability, it may transfer some or all of the debit balance under subsection (3) or choose to use its excess entitlement under subsection (4), or a combination of both.

Debit balance

(3) Company A may choose to transfer under section OB 44 some or all of a debit balance in the company's imputation credit account to another company (company B) in the former group. An imputation additional tax liability remains for the amount of the debit balance that is not transferred.

Liability arising from excess entitlement

(4) Company A is liable for an amount of imputation additional tax equal to the amount of the excess entitlement described in subsection (5) reduced, to no less than zero, by the amount of any payment that company A—

(a) made as provisional tax or income tax; and

(b) chooses to treat as having been paid by company B.

Amount of excess entitlement

(5) Company A's excess entitlement at the time it stops being part of the former group is 1 of the following amounts:

(a) zero, if the credit balance of its imputation credit account at the time is equal to or more than—

(i) the amount in the tax pooling account provided by or for the benefit of company A that is more than its liability to pay income tax or provisional tax at the time; or

(ii) the entitlement company A would have to a refund under sections RM 2, RM 4, and RM 5 (which relate to refunds of excess tax) as if sections RM 13 to RM 17 (which relate to limits on refunds) did not apply; or

(b) the total of the amounts referred to in paragraph (a)(i) and (ii) if no credit balance exists at the time; or

(c) the excess of the total of the amounts referred to in paragraph (a)(i) and (ii) over the credit balance, if paragraph (b) does not apply.

Due date

(6) If company A chooses to pay imputation additional tax under subsections (2) and (4), it must pay the amount to the Commissioner no later than the 20th day of the month following the month in which company A stops being part of the former group.

Joint liability

(7) Company A and all companies in the former group are jointly liable for a payment of imputation additional tax under subsection (6). A payment of imputation additional tax does not satisfy any other liability of company A or the former group.

Payment by excess tax

(8) Company A, or another company in the former group, may choose to apply an excess tax payment to satisfy company A's liability.

Form of election

(9) An election under this section must follow the form of an election under section OB 13(5). However, if subsection (3) or (4) apply to transfer a debit or treat an amount of tax as having been paid, company A must also provide a notice of agreement from company B in relation to the amount of excess tax payment.

Defined in this Act: amount, Commissioner, company, excess tax payment, group of companies, imputation additional tax, imputation credit, imputation credit account, income tax, income tax liability, loss balance, notice, pay, provisional tax, tax loss, tax pooling account, tax year, ultimate owner, wholly-owned group of companies

OB 72B Limit on using entitlement to refund after joining wholly-owned group

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when—

(a) an ICA company joins a wholly-owned group of companies (the new group) from another group of companies (the former group); and

(ab) if the former group is not a wholly-owned group of companies, the ICA company has transferred imputation credits under section OB 83 to a company in the former group; and

(b) the ICA company is not liable for imputation additional tax under section OB 72(5).

Restricted refund amount for company and new group

(2) Subsections (3) to (8) apply to an amount (the restricted refund amount) for the ICA company and the new group that is greater than zero and calculated using the formula—refund amount − ICA credit balance.

Definition of items in formula

(3) In the formula,—

(a) refund amount is the total of the following amounts, determined immediately before the ICA company joins the new group:

(i) the amount in the tax pooling account provided by or for the benefit of the ICA company that is more than the company's liability to pay income tax or provisional tax at the time:

(ii) the amount of the refund to which the ICA company is entitled under sections RM 2, RM 4, and RM 5 (which relate to refunds of excess tax) other than an amount affected by a restriction under subsection (5) for the company and another group:

(b) ICA credit balance is the credit balance of the ICA company's imputation credit account immediately before the company joins the new group.

Payment to Commissioner

(4) If the restricted refund amount is greater than the amount referred to in subsection (3)(a)(ii), the ICA company must pay to the Commissioner an amount equal to the excess and the Commissioner must hold the amount with the balance of the restricted refund amount as if the excess were a refund to which the company were entitled under section RM 2 (Refunds for overpaid tax).

Use of restricted refund amount: former group wholly-owned

(5) If the former group is a wholly-owned group of companies, the Commissioner must hold the restricted refund amount for the ICA company and the new group subject to the restriction that the amount—

(a) may be refunded for an imputation credit only if the ICA company satisfies the Commissioner that the credit—

(i) arises from taxation paid by the ICA company or by a company that is in the same wholly-owned group as the ICA company and was in the former group immediately before the ICA company joined the new group:

(ii) is attached to a dividend received in relation to a shareholding by the ICA company or by a company that is in the same wholly-owned group as the ICA company and was in the former group immediately before the ICA company joined the new group and had the shareholding then; and

(b) may be used to satisfy a tax liability referred to in subsection (5C).

Use of restricted refund amount: former group not wholly-owned

(5B) If the former group is not a wholly-owned group of companies, the Commissioner must hold the restricted refund amount for the ICA company and the new group subject to the restriction that the amount—

(a) may be refunded for an imputation credit if—

(i) the credit was transferred to the ICA company by a company that was in the former group when the ICA company was in the former group:

(ii) the credit arises from taxation paid by the ICA company or by a company that is in the new group and was in the former group immediately before the ICA company joined the new group:

(iii) the credit is attached to a dividend received in relation to a shareholding by the ICA company or by a company that is in the new group and was in the former group immediately before the ICA company joined the new group; and

(b) may be used to satisfy a tax liability referred to in subsection (5C).

Tax liability in subsection (5) or (5B)

(5C) A tax liability referred to in subsection (5) or (5B) is a tax liability of—

(a) the ICA company:

(b) a company (the member) that is in the new group with the ICA company, if the ICA company satisfies the Commissioner that the member was in the former group immediately before the ICA company joined the new group.

Restriction additional to other requirements

(6) The restriction imposed by subsection (5) or (5B) on the use of a restricted refund amount is in addition to the requirements under other provisions of the Act for a refund or the satisfaction of a tax liability from an amount to which the ICA company is entitled under sections RM 2, RM 4, and RM 5.

Reducing restricted refund amount

(7) The restricted refund amount for the ICA company and a group is reduced by the amount of—

(a) a refund permitted under subsection (5)(a) or (5B)(a) relating to the restricted refund amount:

(b) a satisfaction of a tax liability permitted by subsection (5)(b) or (5B)(b) relating to the restricted refund amount:

(c) a payment of imputation additional tax under subsection (8) relating to the restricted refund amount:

(d) a payment of imputation additional tax under section OB 71(4) relating to the restricted refund amount.

Liability for imputation additional tax

(8) The ICA company is liable for an amount of imputation additional tax equal to the restricted refund amount for the company and a wholly-owned group of companies (the old group) determined immediately after a change in the holding of voting interests in the ICA company if, immediately after the change, a group of people hold common voting interests in the ICA company that exceed, by 67% or more, the common voting interests—

(a) in the group of companies to which the company belonged immediately before the company joined the old group; and

(b) that were held by the same people immediately before the company joined the old group.

Distributions of statutory producer boards and co-operative companies

OB 73 Statutory producer boards attaching imputation credits to cash distributions

Election

(1) On meeting the requirements of subsection (2), a statutory producer board that is an ICA company may choose, for an income year, to attach an imputation credit to a cash distribution paid to a member of the producer board.

Requirements

(2) The producer board may make an election under subsection (1) if—

(a) the distribution is made to all persons who were members of the board at a time in the income year; and

(b) the board proposes to pay the distribution based on 1 of the factors set out in subsection (3); and

(c) the board would, in the absence of this section, have a deduction for some or all of the distribution, whether as an association rebate under subpart HE (Mutual associations) or under some other provision of this Act.

Methods

(3) The amount of the distribution must be based on 1 of the following methods of determination, as applicable, for an income year:

(a) all payments for a member's produce transactions during the income year as a proportion of total payments for all members' produce transactions during the income year; or

(b) all levies payable by a member for the income year as a proportion of total levies payable by members for the income year; or

(c) another method of determination approved by the Commissioner.

Total credits attached

(4) The total amount of imputation credit attached to the distribution is calculated using the formula—

$$\text{total net dividend} \times \text{tax rate} \div (1 - \text{tax rate}).$$

Definition of items in formula

(5) In the formula in subsection (4),—

(a) total net dividend is the total amount of the distribution excluding the amount of imputation credit:

(b) tax rate is the basic rate of income tax set out in schedule 1, part A, clause 2 (Basic tax rates: income tax, ESCT, RSCT, RWT, and attributed fringe benefits) for the income year.

Member's credits

(6) The amount of a member's share of an imputation credit attached under subsection (4) is calculated using the formula—

(member's distribution ÷ total distribution) × total imputation credit attached.

Definition of items in formula

(7) In the formula in subsection (6),—

(a) member's distribution is the amount of the member's share of the distribution excluding the amount of imputation credit:

When this section applies

Method 2

(4) Method 2 requires the trust or fund to make a calculation for the notional winding up of the trust or fund by taking the following steps:

(c) step 3: determine the amount of notional credits required to fully impute, for each unit holder, the payment of a redemption dividend, and aggregate the amounts, applying the maximum imputation ratio to the total amount:

(d) step 4: establish the imputation credit shortfall between the notional credits under step 2 and the credits required under step 3.

Opening balance

(5) The amount of the opening balance is—

(a) the amount of the difference for method 1; and

(b) imputation credits lost because shareholder continuity is lost; and

(c) foreign tax credits; and

(d) retained earnings generated before the trust or fund established an imputation credit account.

(b) a calculation under this section must be undertaken in a manner consistent with the preparation of financial statements and unit pricing calculations, based on an orderly realisation of assets in the ordinary course of business and demonstrable market valuations.

Calculating provisional tax liability

RC 5 Methods for calculating provisional tax liability

Choice of method

(1) A person liable to pay provisional tax must calculate the amount payable for a tax year using 1 of the methods described in subsections (2) to (7).

Standard method: 5% uplift

(2) Under the standard method, the amount of provisional tax payable for the tax year is, for the purpose of determining the amount of any particular instalment of provisional tax payable under section RC 9, 105% of the person's residual income tax for the preceding tax year, determined under section RC 6. Subsection (3) overrides this subsection.

Standard method: 10% uplift

(3) Despite subsection (2), the amount of provisional tax payable for the tax year is, for the purpose of determining the amount of any particular instalment of provisional tax payable under section RC 9, 110% of the person's residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year if—

(a) they are required to provide a return of income for the preceding tax year; and

(b) the return is not due on or before the relevant instalment date through the application of section 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994, or an extension granted under that section; and

(c) they have not provided the return on or before the relevant instalment date; and

(d) the relevant instalment date is not the date of instalment F for the corresponding income year.

Non-working days

(3B) For the purposes of subsection (3)(c), if the relevant instalment date falls on a day that is not a working day, a return for the preceding tax year provided on the first working day after that instalment date is deemed to have been provided on the instalment date.

Relationships and modification of standard method

(4) Subsections (5) to (7) override subsection (3). Sections RC 10(5), RZ 3 (Standard method: 2010–11 to 2012–13 income years) and RZ 5D (Standard method or GST method: transition for Maori authorities) modify subsections (2) and (3).

Truncation

(4B) An amount calculated under subsection (2) or (3) is truncated to whole dollars, for example $10.98 equals $10.

Estimation method

(5) The person may estimate their provisional tax liability for the tax year under section RC 7.

AIM method

(5B) A person must use the AIM method under section RC 7B to determine their provisional tax liability for the tax year (the current tax year), other than a transitional year, if the person—

(a) has chosen to either—

(i) use the AIM method for the current tax year on or before their first instalment date under the AIM method; or

(ii) change part-year to use the AIM method for their remaining instalment dates under the AIM method for the current tax year, and they use either the standard method or GST ratio method at the beginning of the current tax year and, before changing to use the AIM method, they met all of their provisional tax obligations under the relevant method, from the beginning of the current tax year; and

(b) has an AIM-capable accounting system that is up-to-date for relevant tax law for the corresponding income year and for determinations under section 91AAX of the Tax Administration Act 1994 for the corresponding income year; and

(c) has—

(i) annual gross income of $5,000,000 or less for the tax year before the current tax year:

(ii) annual gross income of $5,000,000 or less for the first tax year for which the person used the AIM method, and the Commissioner has approved under section 15Z of the Tax Administration Act 1994 the person's continued use of an AIM-capable accounting system for tax years in which the person has annual gross income of more than $5,000,000:

(iii) a large business AIM-capable system; and

(d) has not been liable, in 1 of the last 4 tax years before the current tax year, for a shortfall penalty in relation to their use of the AIM method and an approved AIM provider's AIM-capable accounting system; and

(e) has not returned tax liabilities using the AIM method with the sole purpose or effect of consistently, year-on-year, reducing their tax liabilities below the amounts of reasonably accurate assessments; and

(f) is not a member of a class of taxpayers that the Commissioner has determined, under section 91AAY of the Tax Administration Act 1994, must not use the AIM method; and

(g) for the current tax year, has not failed more than twice to give the Commissioner information in the prescribed form, as provided by section 45 of the Tax Administration Act 1994.

AIM method: exception

(5C) A person who does not meet the requirements of subsection (5B) can not use the AIM method for the current tax year. If they can not use the AIM method for the current year because part-way through the corresponding income year the person stops meeting the requirements of subsection (5B), the person is treated as using the estimation method for the whole of the current tax year.

GST ratio method

(6) A person who is eligible under section RC 16 and not excluded by section RC 17 may choose to use a goods and services tax (GST) ratio under section RC 8 to determine their provisional tax liability for the tax year.

Commissioner's determination

(7) If the Commissioner determines a person's provisional tax liability under section 119 of the Tax Administration Act 1994, the amount or liability is that last determined by the Commissioner and notified to the person at least 30 days before the instalment date. The 30-day requirement does not apply in a case to which section 119(1)(d) of that Act applies (which relates to an estimate of residual income tax that is not fair and reasonable).

Life insurance business

(8) A person who carries on a business of providing life insurance and who is liable for income tax under the rules for life insurers, must at the time they determine their provisional tax liability provide the Commissioner with details of the calculation of that liability. In particular, they must detail the extent to which the amount of provisional tax relates to the policyholder base.

Defined in this Act: AIM-capable accounting system, amount, annual gross income, business, Commissioner, corresponding income year, GST ratio, income tax, instalment date, large business AIM-capable system, life insurance, notify, pay, policyholder base, provisional tax, residual income tax, return of income, shortfall penalty, tax year, taxpayer, transitional year

RC 6 Standard method

When this section applies

(1) This section applies to a person liable to pay provisional tax for the purposes of section RC 5(2) and (3) and the calculation of the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year under the standard method.

Assessment for preceding tax year

(2) The person's residual income tax for a tax year is based on their assessment for the preceding tax year unless the Commissioner has sent out a notice of assessment for the tax year at least 30 days before the relevant instalment date, in which case the amount of residual income tax is based on the Commissioner's assessment for the preceding tax year.

Commissioner's assessment for preceding tax year

(3) The person's residual income tax is based on the Commissioner's assessment for the preceding tax year, whenever the assessment is made, if—

(a) they are required under sections 33 and 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994 to provide a return of income for the preceding tax year but have failed to do so by the relevant instalment date; or

(b) they are not required under sections 33 and 37 of that Act to provide a return by the relevant instalment date, and subsections (2) and (4) do not apply.

Residual income tax for preceding tax year

(4) The amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year is the amount of the person's residual income tax for the preceding tax year if—

(a) they are not required to provide a return of income for the preceding tax year; or

(b) their residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year was $5,000 or less, and they were not required to provide, and have not provided, a return of income for the tax year by the date of instalment F for the corresponding income year.

Later increased assessment

(5) If the Commissioner's assessment of a person's income tax liability occurs after the payment date for an instalment of provisional tax and would result in an increase in the person's residual income tax for the relevant tax year, the residual income tax is treated for the purposes of the provisional tax rules as if it had not been increased.

Transitional years and consolidated groups

(6) A person's residual income tax in a transitional year is calculated under section RC 20. For consolidated groups, the calculation is made under section RC 29.

Defined in this Act: amount, assessment, Commissioner, consolidated group, corresponding income year, income tax liability, instalment date, notice, pay, provisional tax, provisional tax rules, residual income tax, return of income, tax year, transitional year

RC 7 Estimation method

When this section applies

(1) This section applies to a person who is liable to pay provisional tax under section RC 5(5) and to the calculation of the amount of their provisional tax payable for a tax year under the estimation method.

Fair and reasonable estimate

(2) On or before an instalment date, the person may make a fair and reasonable estimate of their residual income tax for the tax year by informing the Commissioner of the estimate. The amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year is the amount of the estimated residual income tax.

Revising estimates

(3) On or before an instalment date, the person may choose to revise an estimate made under subsection (2). The amount last estimated is the amount taken into account under section RC 5(5).

Exception for person making election under section IZ 8

(3B) A person, including a person who otherwise does not use the estimation method in the tax year, who makes an election under section IZ 8 (Election to use net loss for 2019–20 or 2020–21 year as tax loss in preceding year), and a shareholder-employee of such a person, may make or revise an estimate made under subsection (2), for the tax year corresponding to the income year referred to in section IZ 8 as the taxable income year, before the earlier of the date on which the person files the return of income for the tax year and the date on which the return is due.

Reasonable care in making and maintaining assessment

(4) A person who makes an estimate under subsection (2) must take reasonable care in making it, and must revise the estimate for the tax year if, at some time in the tax year, the amount estimated is no longer fair and reasonable.

Estimation higher than provisional tax payable

(5) If a person's estimate is more than the provisional tax that is payable for the tax year, they are treated as having taken reasonable care in making the estimate.

Changing calculation method from GST ratio

(6) If, under section RC 18(5), a person changes the way they determine the amount of provisional tax after the date of an instalment, they must estimate their residual income tax for their corresponding income year, and must pay provisional tax on whichever of the following instalment dates for the income year occur after 30 days from their last ratio instalment date:

(a) C and F for changes to a 6-monthly GST taxable period:

(b) B, D, and F for other changes.

RC 7B AIM method

When this section applies

(1) This section applies to—

(a) a person who meets the requirements of section RC 5(5B); and

(b) the calculation of the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year, other than a transitional year, under the AIM method.

AIM method

(2) A person must use an AIM-capable accounting system for the calculation of provisional tax payable for a tax year.

Meaning of AIM-capable accounting system

(3) AIM-capable accounting system means a double-entry accounting system that is an approved AIM provider's product, and uses a core software package from an approved AIM provider, if the system has the following features:

(a) a core software accounting package and connected packages that provide the ability to—

(i) generate and keep comprehensive financial accounts, including accounting income and expenditure, ledger accounts, trial balances, bank account reconciliations, and journals, on an on-demand basis, in accordance with good accounting and tax practice; and

(ii) calculate tax liabilities for the tax year using tax adjustments for the financial accounts, in accordance with a determination under section 91AAX of the Tax Administration Act 1994(a section 91AAX determination), and using tax rates under a section 91AAX determination; and

(iii) for amounts for which there is no tax adjustment under a section 91AAX determination, calculate tax liabilities for the tax year using tax rates under a section 91AAX determination, and using tax adjustments for the financial accounts that result in reasonably accurate assessments of tax liabilities for a person; and

(iv) recalculate all financial accounts and tax liabilities, if retrospective adjustments are required for the year to date; and

(v) produce reports and other information as required by the Commissioner, in formats prescribed by the Commissioner; and

(b) electronic communication facilities for—

(i) giving information in the form prescribed by the Commissioner; and

(ii) sending and receiving messages and notifications; and

(c) help documentation for end-users and their tax agents on the use of the package, with ongoing support provided by the approved AIM provider on the use of the package.

Defined in this Act: AIM-capable accounting system, approved AIM provider, Commissioner, person, provisional tax, tax agent, tax year

Section RC 7B: inserted, on 1 April 2018, by section 36(1) (and see section 36(2) for application) of the Taxation (Business Tax, Exchange of Information, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 3).

RC 8 GST ratio method

Using GST ratio

(1) A person liable to pay provisional tax who meets the requirements of section RC 16 and is not excluded by section RC 17 may choose to use a GST ratio to determine the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year.

Meaning of GST ratio

(2) The person's GST ratio is the percentage figure that is obtained by dividing their residual income tax for the preceding tax year by their total taxable supplies for the corresponding income year. The amount of residual income tax and the amount of total taxable supplies are called base amounts for the purposes of this section.

When amounts based on tax year before preceding tax year

(3) If a base amount for the preceding tax year or corresponding income year is not known, the GST ratio is the percentage based on the assessment for the tax year and corresponding income year that are just before the preceding tax year and corresponding income year.

When no assessment for tax year before preceding tax year

(3B) Subsection (3) does not apply and the GST ratio is the percentage based on the assessments of the base amounts for the year that is 2 years before the preceding tax year if—

(a) for the year before the preceding tax year—

(i) an assessment of a base amount has not been made and the absence of an assessment arises because of an extension of time for filing a return for the year, or a period in the year:

(ii) an assessment of a base amount is the subject of a dispute or challenge under the Tax Administration Act 1994:

(iii) the year is a transitional year; and

(b) for the year that is 2 years before the preceding tax year—

(i) the base amounts have been assessed; and

(ii) the circumstances in paragraph (a)(ii) and (iii) do not exist.

Commissioner's calculation

(4) The Commissioner must calculate a person's GST ratio, informing them by—

(a) including the percentage figure on the person's preprinted GST return form; or

(b) [Repealed]

(c) some other means.

Adjustment to GST ratio

(5) The Commissioner must adjust a person's GST ratio if a base amount is revised through, among other reasons,—

(a) an assessment or an amended assessment of the person's income tax return for the preceding tax year; or

(b) a change in the value of the total taxable supplies for the corresponding income year; or

(c) the disposal of an asset to which section RC 19 applies.

New GST ratio

(6) When subsection (5) applies, the Commissioner must inform the person of the new GST ratio. The new ratio applies in relation to the relevant instalment dates that occur 30 days after the date on which the person is informed.

Transitional years

(7) If a person has paid instalments of provisional tax in a transitional year, for the tax year that follows the transitional year, for the purposes of this section and section RC 11, they must—

(a) ignore the transitional year when determining their residual income tax or total taxable supplies; and

(b) base their determination of residual income tax and total taxable supplies on the tax year preceding the transitional year.

When no assessment for tax year before preceding tax year

(7B) Subsection (7) does not apply and the GST ratio is the percentage based on the assessments of the base amounts for the year that is 2 years before the transitional year if—

(a) for the year before the transitional year—

(i) an assessment of a base amount has not been made and the absence of an assessment arises because of an extension of time for filing a return for the year, or a period in the year:

(ii) an assessment of a base amount is the subject of a dispute or challenge under the Tax Administration Act 1994:

(iii) the year is a transitional year; and

(b) for the year that is 2 years before the transitional year—

(i) the base amounts have been assessed; and

(ii) the circumstances in paragraph (a)(ii) and (iii) do not exist.

Total taxable supplies

(8) In subsections (2), (5), and (7), and in sections RC 11, RC 19, and RC 31, total taxable supplies, for a person and a period, means the amount that is the total value of taxable supplies by the person for the period. The amount includes the GST charged on the supplies.

Modification

(9) Sections RZ 4 (GST ratio method: 2010–11 to 2013–14 income years) and RZ 5D (Standard method or GST method: transition for Maori authorities) modify this section.

Defined in this Act: amount, assessment, base amount, Commissioner, corresponding income year, GST, GST ratio, income tax, inform, instalment date, pay, provisional tax, residual income tax, return, tax year, taxable supply, total taxable supplies, transitional year

Instalments of provisional tax

RC 9 Provisional tax payable in instalments

Who this section applies to

(1) This section applies to a person who is liable to pay provisional tax.

General principle

(2) For a person liable to pay provisional tax using the standard and estimation methods, the amount of the provisional tax liability must be spread evenly over the applicable number of instalments, so that equal amounts are paid on each instalment date. If the full amount is not divisible into exactly equal instalments, the final instalment carries the difference.

Provisional tax payable in 3 instalments

(3) A person pays provisional tax in 3 instalments on the interest instalment dates for the tax year in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns B, D, and F (Payment of provisional tax and terminal tax) for the person's corresponding income year. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 10. Subsection (4) overrides this subsection.

Exclusions

(4) Subsection (3) does not apply—

(a) to a person liable to pay provisional tax who—

(i) pays GST on a 6-monthly basis; or

(ii) uses a GST ratio to determine the amount of provisional tax payable, or who changes their calculation method under section RC 18(5); or

(iii) changes the cycle of their taxable periods under section 15C of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985:

(b) to a person with an initial provisional tax liability who—

(i) pays GST on a 6-monthly basis; or

(ii) pays GST on a monthly or 2-monthly basis, and starts a taxable activity within 30 days before the date of instalment B in their corresponding income year:

(bb) to a person that uses the AIM method for the tax year:

(c) to a person liable to pay provisional tax who has not provided a return of income for the preceding tax year, and whose residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year was $5,000 or less:

(d) in a transitional year.

(4B) A person liable to pay provisional tax who uses the AIM method for the current tax year must pay provisional tax—

(a) if the person is not registered for GST, or has a 6-month taxable period under section 15 of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985, on the 6 instalment dates in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns A, B, C, D, E, and F for their balance date. The amount of each instalment is provided by section RC 10B; or

(b) if the person has a 2-month taxable period under section 15 of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985, on the group of 6 instalment dates in the months set out in either schedule 3, part A, columns A, B, C, D, E, and F or in schedule 3, part A, columns A1, B1, C1, D1, E1, and F1 that corresponds to the due dates for their GST returns. The amount of each instalment is provided by section RC 10B; or

(c) if the person has a 1-month taxable period under section 15 of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985, on the 12 instalment dates in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns A to F1 for their corresponding income year. The amount of each instalment is provided by section RC 10B.

Part-year change into AIM

(4C) A person who chooses to change to the AIM method under section RC 5(5B)(a)(ii) must use the relevant remaining instalment dates for them under the AIM method. The amount of each relevant instalment is calculated under section RC 10B.

Provisional tax when GST paid on 6-monthly basis

(5) A person liable to pay provisional tax who pays GST on a 6-monthly basis must pay provisional tax on the 2 interest instalment dates for the tax year in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns C and F for their corresponding income year. This subsection applies to a person with an initial provisional tax liability other than 1 who pays GST on a 6-monthly basis and starts a taxable activity within 30 days before the date of instalment C.

Provisional tax determined using GST ratio

(6) A person liable to pay provisional tax who uses a GST ratio to determine the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year, must pay provisional tax on the 6 ratio instalment dates in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns A, B, C, D, E, and F for their corresponding income year. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 11.

Changing calculation method

(7) A person who is unable or who decides not to use a GST ratio, changing their calculation method under section RC 18, must pay the provisional tax payable for the tax year on the relevant instalment dates under the replacement method. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 10.

Changing cycle of taxable periods

(8) A person who changes the cycle of their taxable periods under section 15C of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985 must pay provisional tax for the tax year on the instalment dates set out in section RC 27 after the change in taxable period takes effect. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 10.

Persons with initial provisional tax liability

(9) A person with an initial provisional tax liability who starts a taxable activity in a tax year is liable to pay interest calculated under section 120KC of the Tax Administration Act 1994 as if they were liable to pay provisional tax for the tax year—

(a) in 3 instalments under subsection (3) if they start a taxable activity at some time in the period that starts at the beginning of the corresponding income year and ends 30 days before the date of instalment B:

(b) in 2 instalments—

(i) in a case to which section RC 13 applies; or

(ii) if they pay GST on a 6-monthly basis and start a taxable activity at some time in the period that starts at the beginning of the corresponding income year and ends 30 days before the date of instalment C:

(c) in 1 instalment in a case to which section RC 14 applies.

Extension of time for return

RC 10 Calculating amount of instalment under standard and estimation methods

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of—

(a) section RC 5(2), (3), and (5) (which relates to the calculation of a provisional tax liability); and

(b) section RC 9(3) and (5) (which relates to payment of instalments); and

(c) sections RC 13 and RC 14 (which relate to persons with an initial provisional tax liability and those with an extension of time for providing a return); and

(d) sections RC 26 and RC 27 (which relate to changes in taxable periods).

Calculation

(2) The amount of an instalment of provisional tax is calculated using the formula—

(residual income tax × instalment number ÷ total instalments)
− provisional tax.

Definition of items in formula

(3) In the formula,—

(a) residual income tax is a person's residual income tax, as applicable—

(i) for the preceding tax year, uplifted by 5% (modified as applicable by sections RZ 5 (Calculating amounts under standard method: 2010–11 to 2012–13 income years) and RZ 5D (Standard method or GST method: transition for Maori authorities); or

(ii) for the tax year before the preceding tax year, uplifted by 10% (modified as applicable by sections RZ 5 and RZ 5D); or

(iii) the amount estimated by them:

(b) instalment number is the number of the instalment for the tax year, whether first, second, or third:

(c) total instalments is the total number of instalments for the tax year:

(d) provisional tax is the amount of a person's provisional tax liabilities for the tax year to date.

Instalment amounts after change in balance date or taxable period

(4) If a change occurs to the balance date or cycle of a person's taxable periods, the calculation of the amount of an instalment is made under this section, applying the updated figures to the items in the formula.

Some standard method taxpayers

(5) A person who uses the standard method may, despite subsection (2), choose that the amount of their final instalment of provisional tax of a tax year is calculated using the following formula, if their expected RIT under subsection (6)(a) is $60,000 or more—

expected RIT − tax.

Definition of items in formula

(6) In the formula,—

(a) expected RIT is the person's expectation of their residual income tax for the tax year:

(b) tax is the amount of a person's provisional tax liabilities for the tax year to date.

Truncation

(7) An instalment calculated under this section is truncated to whole dollars, for example $10.98 equals $10.

RC 10B Calculating amount of instalment for periods using AIM method

Calculating amount for full-year AIM method

(1) For a person who uses the AIM method, the amount of provisional tax payable on an instalment date for a tax year is the amount calculated using an AIM-capable accounting system for the 2-monthly or monthly period given by schedule 3, part AB (Payment of provisional tax and terminal tax) for the applicable instalment date.

Calculating amount when part-year change into AIM method

(2) For a person who chooses to change to the AIM method under section RC 5(5B)(a)(ii), the amount of provisional tax payable on a remaining instalment date for a tax year is given by subsection (1), except for the first remaining instalment date. Subsection (3) provides the calculation for the first remaining instalment date.

Calculating when part-year change into AIM method: first remaining instalment

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2), the amount of provisional tax payable for the first remaining instalment date is the total amount, year to date including the firstRD remaining instalment date, that would have been payable if the person had used the AIM method from the beginning of the tax year, less the amount of provisional tax the person has paid, before the change, under the relevant non-AIM method for the tax year.

Defined in this Act: AIM-capable accounting system, instalment date, person, provisional tax

(1) A person liable to pay provisional tax may choose to use a GST ratio to determine under section RC 5(6) the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year only if they meet all the requirements of subsections (2) and (3) in relation to the same entity.

Requirements for preceding tax year

(2) For the purposes of determining their eligibility for a tax year, the person must meet the following requirements in the preceding tax year and corresponding income year:

(a) their residual income tax, as calculated, was more than $5,000 but no more than $150,000; and

(b) they were a registered person for the whole income year, and provided a return under the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985 for an entity whose taxable activity did not begin operations in that tax year; and

Requirement for current year

(3) For the tax year in which the person uses a GST ratio, they must be liable to file a return under the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985 for a 2-month or a 1-month period under section 15(1)(b) and (c) of that Act.

(a) their GST registration ends under section 52 of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985 in the tax year; or

(b) they no longer qualify under section RC 16(2) as a result of an amended assessment of their income tax liability or their GST liability for the preceding tax year; or

(bb) their residual income tax, as disclosed in a return of income filed in the tax year, means they no longer meet the requirements of section RC 16(2); or

(c) they no longer qualify under section RC 16(3) as a result of a change in their taxable period.

No GST return

(2) A person must not use, or must stop using, a GST ratio for a tax year if they—

(iii) the person remedied the failure as soon as practicable; and

(c) the Commissioner notifies the person that they may use the GST ratio for the instalment period.

Later default

(6) Notification under subsection (4) does not apply to an instalment period if—

(a) the person fails to file a return due after the date of the notice unless the failure is anticipated and referred to in the notice; and

(b) the instalment period begins on or after the due date of the return described in paragraph (a).

RC 18 Changing calculation method

When this section applies

(1) This section applies if, after having chosen to use a GST ratio for a tax year, a person liable to pay provisional tax either—

(a) chooses another way to calculate the amount of provisional tax payable for the tax year; or

(b) is required under section RC 17(1) or (2) to stop using a GST ratio for the corresponding income year.

Informing Commissioner of decision to change

(2) The person must inform the Commissioner of their decision under subsection (1)(a). Subsection (4) or (5) then applies for the remaining instalments of provisional tax for the tax year.

Date on which use of GST ratio stopped

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1)(b), the date on which the person stops using a GST ratio is, as applicable,—

(a) the date their GST registration ends; or

(b) the date of the amended assessment of their income tax liability or GST liability for the preceding tax year; or

(bb) the date the person's return of income referred to in section RC 17(1)(bb) is received by the Commissioner; or

(c) the effective date of a change in taxable period; or

(d) the last day of the period in which a return is liable to be provided under the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985.

Changing method before date of instalment A

(4) If the person is unable or decides not to use a GST ratio before the date of instalment A, and section RC 3(3) does not apply, they may choose to determine the amount of provisional tax payable under section RC 5(2), (3) or (5). The person is treated as never having chosen to use the GST ratio method and, for the purposes of section 120KE(5) of the Tax Administration Act 1994, as never having changed the way they determine an amount of provisional tax under this section.

Changing method after instalment date

(5) If the person is unable or decides not to use the GST ratio after an instalment date, and section RC 3(3) does not apply, they must determine the amount of provisional tax payable on instalment for the remainder of the income year under section RC 5(5) using the estimation method. The person must inform the Commissioner of the estimate.

Date of application when method changed

(6) If the person changes their calculation method under subsection (4) or (5), and the change is not required by section RC 17(1)(bb), the date on which the change applies may be a future date agreed between the person and the Commissioner.

Other consequences of changing method

(7) For the purposes of this section,—

(a) the number of instalments and the instalment dates remaining for an income year depend on—

(i) the requirements of the method chosen by the person when they stop using the GST ratio; and

(ii) the cycle of taxable periods chosen by the person, being either a monthly or 2-monthly basis:

(b) a person may change from using a GST ratio to a 6-monthly cycle of taxable periods only if—

(i) the requirements of section 15C of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985 are met; and

(ii) their 6-month taxable period is aligned with their balance date under section 15B of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985:

(c) section 120KE(5) to (7) of the Tax Administration Act 1994 applies in deciding whether use of money interest is payable in relation to instalments under the new method.

When a person calculates an amount of tax for a PAYE income payment, they must use the maximum rate under schedule 2 (Basic tax rates for PAYE income payments) at the time for the payment and the person receiving the payment, unless this Act states otherwise.

Defined in this Act: amount of tax, pay, PAYE income payment

Compare: 2004 No 35 s NC 6(1A), (3)

RD 10 Amounts of tax for PAYE income payments

PAYE income payments other than schedular payments

(1) The amount of tax for a PAYE income payment that a person must withhold and pay to the Commissioner under section RA 5 (Tax obligations for employment-related taxes) is the relevant amount under schedule 2 (Basic tax rates for PAYE income payments). Subsections (2), (2B), (2C), (2D), and (3) and sections RD 12 to RD 20C override this subsection.

Choosing rate for extra pay

(2) An employee who notifies their employer of their tax code may choose to have the amount of tax for an extra pay fixed as follows:

(a) for an employee whose taxable income for the income year is expected to be not more than $53,500, the rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1, row 3; or

(b) for an employee whose taxable income for the income year is expected to be not more than $78,100, the rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1, row 4; or

(c) for an employee whose taxable income for the income year is expected to be not more than $180,000, the rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1, row 5; or

(d) for other employees, the rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1, row 6.

Relationship with section RD 17

(2B) Despite subsection (2), a person must not choose a rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1 that is lower than the rate that would apply to the amount of extra pay under section RD 17.

Rates for extra pays: non-resident seasonal workers

(2C) The amount of tax for an extra pay that is paid to a non-resident seasonal worker is calculated at the rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1, row 1 (Basic tax rates for PAYE income payments). This rate applies for both a worker who has notified their employer under section 24C of the Tax Administration Act 1994 of their tax code under schedule 2, part A, clause 8, and a worker to whom schedule 5, part B, clause 3 of that Act applies. This subsection overrides subsection (2).

Rates for extra pays: non-notified tax codes

(2D) The amount of tax for an extra pay that is paid to an employee who has not notified their employer of their tax code is calculated at the rate set out in schedule 2, part B, table 1, row 7.

Schedular payments

(3) The amount of tax for a schedular payment is determined—

(a) under section RD 10B; and

(b) on the basis of the gross amount of the payment, other than GST, whether—

(i) some or all of the payment is income; and

(ii) the full income tax liability lies with the person receiving the payment, or lies partly with an employee or subcontractor of the person.

Tax tables

(4) The Commissioner may provide tables for the calculation of an amount of tax for a PAYE income payment that may incorporate other relevant information.

Defined in this Act: amount, amount of tax, Commissioner, employee, employer, extra pay, gross, income, income tax liability, income year, non-resident seasonal worker, notify, pay, PAYE income payment, schedular payment, tax code, taxable income

(b) in all other cases, 45% of the amount of the payment.

When schedule or regulations inapplicable

(2) If the amount of tax for a PAYE income payment cannot be determined under schedule 2 (Basic tax rates for PAYE income payments) or under regulations made under this Act because of the size of the PAYE income payment, or the number of the employee's dependants, or for any other reason, the amount of tax for the payment must be determined by the Commissioner, taking into account the factors considered in fixing the amount of tax for other similar payments.

Main benefits, New Zealand superannuation, and veteran's pension

When Commissioner makes determination under section RD 8(3)

(4) If the Commissioner makes a determination under section RD 8(3) in relation to the amount or proportion of expenditure that a person incurs in deriving a schedular payment, the basis for calculating the amount of tax for the schedular payment is the reduced amount found after subtracting the amount or proportion of expenditure determined by the Commissioner from the amount of the payment. This subsection overrides section RD 10(3).

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when a person pays an amount of extra pay to an employee who also receives a PAYE income payment from the person, regardless of whether the extra pay is paid with or separately from a PAYE income payment. The amount of tax for the extra pay is based on the sum of—

Calculating annualised value

(1B) For the purposes of calculating the amount that is the annualised value referred to in subsection (1)(b), the amount of the extra pay referred to in subsection (1)(a) and of extra pays paid to the employee in the period referred to in subsection (1)(b) is excluded.

Exclusion: non-resident seasonal workers and non-notified tax codes

(1C) This section does not apply to—

(a) a non-resident seasonal worker—

(b) an employee who has a non-notified tax code referred to in schedule 2, part A, clause 3.

Rates applying

(2) For the sum of the amounts referred to in subsection (1) listed in the following paragraphs, the amount of tax for the extra pay that must be withheld is the amount determined using the basic amounts of tax for PAYE income payments set out in the relevant row of schedule 2, part B, table 1 (Basic tax rates for PAYE income payments):

(a) if the sum of the amounts is $15,600 or less, the amount determined by applying row 2:

When secondary tax codes apply

(3) Despite subsection (2), if the person pays an amount of extra pay to an employee in relation to which the employee has notified the person that a secondary code under schedule 5, part A, clause 4, rows 3 to 6B of the Tax Administration Act 1994 applies, the rate under schedule 2, part B, table 1 applying to the extra pay is determined using the formula—extra pay + annualised amount + low threshold amount.

Definition of items in formula

(4) In the formula,—

(a) extra pay is the amount of the employee's extra pay:

(b) annualised amount is the amount given by subsections (1)(b) and (1B):

(c) low threshold amount is, as applicable,—

(i) for secondary code SB, $0:

(ii) the date on which the vehicle ceases to be leased by the employer or an associated person without a consecutive or successive lease of the vehicle by them:

(iii) the date that is 5 years after start of the period of the first return.

Returns after 5 years

(4) In a return relating to the vehicle for a period beginning 5 years or more after the start of the period of the first return, the person may calculate the value of the benefit using either of the valuation methods set out in schedule 5.

Cost price valuation method

RD 29 Private use of motor vehicle: formulas

What this section does

(1) This section sets out the formulas for calculating the value of the benefit that an employer provides to an employee by making a motor vehicle available for their private use.

Quarterly payment

(2) If FBT is paid quarterly, the value of the benefit is calculated using the formula—

$$\text{days} \times \text{schedule 5 amount} \div 90.$$

Annual payment

(3) If FBT is paid on an annual basis, the value of the benefit is the total of the amounts calculated under subsection (2) for the 4 quarters in the applicable tax year.

Payment by income year

(4) If FBT is paid on an income year basis, the value of the benefit is calculated using the formula—

$$\text{days} \times \text{schedule 5 amount} \div 365.$$

Definition of items in formulas

(5) In the formula,—

(a) in subsection (2), days refers to the number of days in the quarter on which the vehicle is made available for private use, reduced by the number of days on which the vehicle was a work-related vehicle, or 90, whichever is less:

(b) in subsection (4), days refers to the number of days in the income year on which the vehicle is made available for private use, reduced by the number of days on which the vehicle was a work-related vehicle:

(c) in subsections (2) and (4), schedule 5 amount refers to the amount calculated under schedule 5 (Fringe benefit values for motor vehicles) as the value of the benefit that would have been received for unlimited private use of the vehicle in that quarter or income year, as applicable.

Test period

(6) To calculate the value of the benefit, an employer may choose to use a test period under section RD 31 to establish private use.

Defined in this Act: amount, employee, employer, FBT, income year, motor vehicle, private use, quarter, tax year, work-related vehicle

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1A(2)–(6)

RD 30 Private use of motor vehicle: 24-hour period

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of a calculation of the value of a benefit under section RD 29.

Meaning of day

(2) In section RD 29(5)(a) and (b), in relation to a motor vehicle and the item days in the formulas, a day is—

(a) a 24-hour period starting from a time in a day that a person who owns or leases the vehicle chooses; or

(b) a 24-hour period starting at midnight if paragraph (a) does not apply.

Choosing starting point and notifying Commissioner

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)(a), the person must—

(a) choose a starting point for the day that is a whole number of an hour after midnight; and

(b) notify the Commissioner of their election when filing the next return relating to the vehicle.

Elections

(4) An election under subsection (2)(a)—

(a) is effective from the start of the quarter, income year, or tax year to which a return relates; and

(b) applies to all vehicles in relation to which the person files a return.

Hour applying for 2 income years

(5) If the person chooses under subsection (3)(a) a particular hour in the 24-hour period as the starting point of the day, that hour continues to apply to the use of the vehicle from the start of the relevant quarter, income year, or tax year, as applicable, for a minimum period of 2 income years.

When circumstances change

(6) An employer may apply to the Commissioner to amend the starting point of the 24-hour period, or to treat the election as revoked, if the employer's circumstances have changed in a way that—

(a) is more than minor; and

(b) makes the starting point no longer relevant to the employer's business.

RD 31 Motor vehicle test period

Recording details for test period

(1) To establish the value of the benefit provided through a motor vehicle being made available to an employee for their private use, an employer may choose to record the details of the use of the vehicle by the employee for a test period.

Number used in calculations

(2) The number of days on which a vehicle is available for an employee's private use that is ascertained in the test period is the number used in the calculation in section RD 29(2). For the calculation in section RD 29(4), the relevant number is the number of days ascertained in the test period multiplied by 4.

Quarter or 3 months for test period

(3) If FBT is paid quarterly or annually, the test period is a quarter. If FBT is paid on an income year basis, the test period is 3 consecutive months of an income year.

Period showing pattern of use

(4) The employer must—

(a) choose a test period that shows, or is likely to show, a pattern of use of the motor vehicle by the employee that fairly represents the use of the vehicle by the employee over the whole of the applicable term; and

(b) keep a record of the test period, including accurate details of the days in the period on which the vehicle is available for the employee's private use.

Work-related vehicles

(5) In subsection (4), a day on which the vehicle is a work-related vehicle is treated as a day on which the vehicle is not available for private use.

Term of 3 years

(6) The number of days of availability for private use ascertained in the test period applies for a term of 3 years. The term starts, as applicable, as follows:

(a) if FBT is paid quarterly, on the first day of the test period:

(b) if FBT is paid on an annual basis, on the first day of the tax year in which the test period occurs:

(c) if FBT is paid on an income year basis, on the first day of the income year in which the test period occurs.

Reduction of term

(7) The term referred to in subsection (6) is reduced if the number of days of actual private use of the motor vehicle is 20%, or more than 20%, higher than the number ascertained in the test period. In this case, the term ends on the last day of the applicable quarter, year, or income year. If the employer chooses to start another test period, the existing term ends just before the start of the new term.

When test period no longer representative

(8) If the Commissioner considers that the result ascertained in the test period does not, or does no longer, fairly represent the actual private use of the motor vehicle by the employee, the Commissioner may notify the employer that the term will end on a particular date. Following notification, the employer must not use that result again.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, employee, employer, FBT, income year, motor vehicle, notify, private use, quarter, tax year, work-related vehicle

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1B(1)–(6)

RD 32 Replacement motor vehicles

For the purposes of section RD 31, a replacement motor vehicle is treated in the same way as the vehicle it replaces if the result ascertained in the test period is likely to be fairly representative of the average availability for the private use of the vehicle during the term.

Defined in this Act: motor vehicle, private use

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1B(7)

RD 33 Subsidised transport

Percentage of highest public fare

(1) The value of a benefit that an employer provides to their employee in subsidised transport is 25% of the highest fare the employer charges the public for the equivalent transport in terms of class, extent, and occasion. This subsection is overridden by subsection (2).

When benefit provided under arrangement

(2) Despite section CX 2(2) (Meaning of fringe benefit), if the fringe benefit is provided under an arrangement with a third person, the value of the benefit is determined under subsection (3).

Percentage or actual payment

(3) If a third person provides the employee with subsidised transport under an arrangement with their employer, the value of the benefit is the greatest of—

(a) 25% of the highest fare the employer charges the public for the equivalent transport in terms of class, extent, and occasion; and

(b) 25% of the highest fare the third person charges the public for the equivalent transport in terms of class, extent, and occasion, if the third person is a company in the same group of companies as the employer; and

(c) the amount that the employer has paid or is liable to pay the person for the benefit provided.

GST

(4) In this section, for a registered person who may claim input tax for subsidised transport, amount means the GST-inclusive amount.

Defined in this Act: amount, arrangement, company, employee, employer, fringe benefit, group of companies, GST, input tax, pay, subsidised transport

Amount of interest or amount under financial arrangement

(2) The value of the benefit in a period is the amount by which the prescribed interest on the loan is more than—

(a) the amount of interest that accrued on the loan in the period; or

Meaning of prescribed interest

(3) For the purposes of this section, prescribed interest means,—

(b) for loans made on or before 31 March 1985, the interest on which is not subject to review, the amount of interest that would have accrued on the loan during the quarter or tax year had the interest been calculated on the daily balance of the loan at the non-concessionary rate of interest for—

(i) the tax year in which the agreement to make the loan was signed; or

(ii) if the agreement was not in writing, the year in which the loan was agreed to by all parties.

Defined in this Act: amount, employee, employer, employment-related loan, financial arrangement, income, interest, non-concessionary rate of interest, prescribed interest, quarter, tax year

Using method for 2 income years

(3) Having made an election under subsection (1), the employer must use the method for the income year to which the election relates and for the next income year.

Notifying Commissioner of change to method

(4) An employer may not change the method of calculating the value of the benefit for an income year, other than from a method given by a paragraph of subsection (5) to the method given by the other paragraph of subsection (5), unless the employer notifies the Commissioner of the proposed change at least 1 year before the start of the income year in which the change is to occur.

Effectiveness of election in some cases

(4B) Despite subsections (3) and (4), the method chosen by an employer described in subsection (1)(b) takes effect for the first quarter beginning after the Commissioner receives the election, if the employer—

(a) is not in the business of lending money; and

(b) does not pay FBT on an income year basis under section RD 60; and

Further options

(5) Instead of calculating FBT under subsections (2) and (4), an employer may choose to—

Value of benefit

(1) The taxable value of a fringe benefit is the value of the benefit. Subsection (2) overrides this subsection.

Reduction for payment by employee

(2) If an employee pays an amount for receiving a fringe benefit, the value of the benefit is reduced by the lesser of the value of the benefit and the amount paid.

When associate pays amount

(3) If section GB 32 (Benefits provided to employee's associates) applies, the value of the benefit is reduced when a person associated with the employee pays an amount for the benefit.

(b) a payment to acquire or improve an asset if receiving or using the asset does not constitute a fringe benefit.

RD 55 Private use of motor vehicle: taxable value in cases of part ownership

If a fringe benefit is provided by making available a motor vehicle to an employee for their private use, and the vehicle is owned in part by the employee (or, if section GB 32 (Benefits provided to employee's associates) applies, a person associated with the employee), the taxable value of the fringe benefit is determined under section RD 56 or RD 57.

Defined in this Act: associated person, employee, fringe benefit, motor vehicle, private use

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1T

RD 56 Private use of motor vehicle: when schedular value not used

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when the employer has not valued the motor vehicle using schedule 5, clause 9 (Fringe benefit values for motor vehicles).

Reduction

(2) In the calculation of the taxable value of the fringe benefit, the value of the benefit determined under sections RD 28 to RD 30 is reduced by an amount that is the applicable percentage of the cost (determined including GST under schedule 5, clause 8(a)) of the motor vehicle to the employee or the associated person as follows:

(a) if FBT is paid quarterly, 2.5%:

(b) if FBT is paid on an annual basis, 2.5% for each quarter in which the vehicle was part-owned by the employee or the associated person:

(c) if FBT is paid on an income year basis, 10%.

When period longer or shorter than income year

(3) In subsection (2)(c) and section RD 57(2)(c) and (3), if the period for which the employer accounts for FBT differs from a normal income year for the reasons described in subsection (4), the amount by which the taxable value of the fringe benefit is reduced is a percentage of the cost (determined including GST under schedule 5, clause 8(a)) of the motor vehicle to the employer or the associated person equal to the amount calculated using the formula—

$$10\% \times \text{number of days in period} \div 365.$$

Reasons for difference

(4) The period for which the employer has accounted may be longer or shorter than the normal income year because the employer has either—

(a) started or ceased business during that income year; or

(b) chosen, with the agreement of the Commissioner, to provide a fringe benefit return for the income year ending with the date of the annual balance of their accounts.

When vehicle owned less than whole year

(5) If an employee has not been part-owner of the motor vehicle for the whole of the income year, or the period referred to in subsection (4), a reduction under this section is reduced by the proportion of the number of days of the income year or period for which the employee was not a part-owner to the total number of days of that income year or period.

Reduction

(2) In the calculation of the taxable value of the fringe benefit, the value of the benefit determined under sections RD 28 to RD 30 is reduced by an amount that is the applicable percentage of the cost, determined excluding GST, under schedule 5, clause 6(a) in the following way:

(a) when FBT is paid quarterly, by a percentage calculated using the formula—

$$2.5 + (2.5 \times \text{schedule 5 rate}):$$

(b) when FBT is paid on an annual basis, by a percentage for each quarter in which the vehicle was part-owned by the employee or associated person calculated using the formula—

$$2.5 + (2.5 \times \text{schedule 5 rate}):$$

(c) when FBT is paid on an income year basis, by a percentage calculated using the formula—

10 + (10 × schedule 5 rate).

Schedule 5 rate

(3) In the formulas, schedule 5 rate is the rate of GST specified in schedule 5, clause 10(b) to (e) for the employer and the relevant quarter and relevant income year, as applicable.

RE 10C Obligations of custodial institutions in relation to certain payments of investment income

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of sections RE 4 and RF 4 (Non-resident passive income received by agents and others) when—

(a) a person who is a custodial institution receives a payment of investment income; and

(b) the institution has RWT-exempt status; and

(c) the institution pays on or transfers the amount received to an end investor.

When this section does not apply

(2) This section does not apply to a custodial institution that is the specified operator of a designated FMI to the extent that the designated FMI is a settlement system. The exclusion extends to a nominee or agent of the specified operator.

Meaning of settlement system and other terms

(2B) For the purposes of subsection (2) and this subsection,—

(a) FMI settlement means a settlement within the meaning of section 5 of the Financial Market Infrastructures Act 2021:

(b) settlement system—

(i) means a system or arrangement for effecting FMI settlements or processing settlement instructions in accordance with rules; and

Obligation to withhold

(3) At the time the payment or transfer is made and to the extent to which the amount of tax has not already been withheld, the custodial institution that makes the payment to the end investor must withhold the amount of tax for the payment and pay it to the Commissioner.

Agreements to transfer withholding obligations: outsourcing withholding

(4) A custodial institution that is required to withhold an amount of tax for a payment may, before the date on which the payment is received by the institution, enter into an agreement with another person (person B) for person B to withhold the amount of tax and pay it to the Commissioner. However, if person B does not withhold the amount of tax and pay it to the Commissioner, the withholding obligation remains with the custodial institution.

Agreements to transfer withholding obligations: passing obligation to other custodial institutions

(5) When a payment of investment income is paid on or transferred through interposed custodial institutions before being paid to an end investor, the custodial institution that is last in the chain may enter into an agreement with another custodial institution that precedes them in the chain, for the latter institution to withhold the amount of tax for the payment and pay it to the Commissioner. In this case, the withholding obligation passes to the latter institution, and the final custodial institution's obligation is discharged.

Meaning of custodial institution

(6) For the purposes of this section and sections RE 4 and RF 4, a custodial institution means an entity—

(a) that holds financial assets or financial instruments as a bare trustee on account for another person; and

(b) whose activities are supervised or regulated under the Financial Markets Conduct Act 2013, the Financial Market Infrastructures Act 2021, the Financial Markets Authority Act 2011, the Financial Advisers Act 2008, or the Banking (Prudential Supervision) Act 1989, or are supervised or regulated under corresponding legislation in another jurisdiction.

Meaning of end investor

(7) For the purposes of this section and sections RE 4 and RF 4, an end investor—

(a) means an investor to whom a payment of investment income is made who is—

(i) a direct investor, whether resident or non-resident, who is the beneficial owner of the investment:

(ii) a custodial institution that is not resident in New Zealand; and

(b) includes a trustee, PIE, or PIE proxy if the person or entity has an obligation to provide investment income information to the Commissioner.

When branches located in New Zealand

(7B) For the purposes of subsection (7)(a)(ii), if the non-resident custodial institution has a branch located in New Zealand that receives a payment of investment income, the branch is treated as the person who must withhold the amount of tax for the payment under subsection (3).

Meaning of investment income

(8) For the purposes of this section, and sections RE 4 and RF 4, investment income means—

(a) resident passive income under section RE 2(1)(a) to (c) subject to the withholding obligations set out in sections RE 3 and RE 4:

(b) non-resident passive income under section RF 2(1) (Non-resident passive income) subject to the withholding obligations set out in section RF 3 (Obligation to withhold amounts of tax for non-resident passive income):

(c) attributed income of investors in portfolio investment entities under sections CP 1, CX 56, and CX 56B (which relate to attributed PIE income).

RF 2B Non-resident financial arrangement income: outline and concepts

What this section does

(1) This section applies for the purposes of sections RF 2C and RF 12D to RF 12J to provide an outline of the provisions relating to the taxation of non-resident financial arrangement income and to describe the key terms used in the provisions. This section—

(a) operates only as an aid to understanding; and

(b) does not override the definition of any term used in this Act; and

(c) does not prevail in any case where a conflict arises between this section and another provision of this Act.

Purpose

(2) The purpose of the rules for non-resident financial arrangement income is to ensure that the payment of NRWT on interest derived by a related-party lender is aligned with deductions for expenditure that a borrower has under the financial arrangements rules.

Key concepts

(3) The following are the key concepts:

(a) non-resident financial arrangement income, which is the equivalent of interest derived by a lender, see section RF 2C:

(b) related-party debt which is a financial arrangement between associated persons, or persons who are regarded as associated, that provides funds to a borrower who is allowed a deduction for expenditure under the arrangement, see section RF 12H (Meaning of related-party debt):

(c) indirect associated funding which is an arrangement involving some form of back-to-back lending, see section RF 12I (Concepts used for definition of related-party debt).

When does a lender derive non-resident financial arrangement income?

(4) An offshore lender will derive non-resident financial arrangement income when—

(a) they are associated with or related to a borrower who is resident in New Zealand; and

(b) the funding is provided through a financial arrangement that is a related-party debt; and

(c) interest payments on the arrangement are deferred when compared to interest deductions by the borrower; and

(d) the borrower's expenditure on related-party debt is more than a de minimis amount.

How is the income calculated?

(5) The non-resident financial arrangement income of a lender is aligned with the amount of the expenditure incurred by the borrower on related-party debt, see section RF 12D.

What are first year adjustments?

(6) An adjustment is made for the first year in which a lender derives non-resident financial arrangement income. The lender is treated as having derived an additional amount that is sufficient to reverse the deferral described in subsection (4)(c), see section RF 12F.

How is the income taxed?

(7) The lender's income is non-resident passive income from which NRWT must be withheld, see section RF 2.

Defined in this Act: amount, associated person, deduction, financial arrangement, financial arrangements rules, interest, non-resident financial arrangement income, non-resident passive income, NRWT, pay, related-party debt, resident in New Zealand

Section RF 2B: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 274 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

Section RF 2B(1): amended, on 29 March 2018 (with effect on 30 March 2017), by section 230 of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2017–18, Employment and Investment Income, and Remedial Matters) Act 2018 (2018 No 5).

Section RF 2B list of defined terms approved issuer: repealed, on 18 March 2019, by section 261 of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2018–19, Modernising Tax Administration, and Remedial Matters) Act 2019 (2019 No 5).

RF 2C Meaning of non-resident financial arrangement income

When this section applies

(1) This section, and sections RF 12D to RF 12J, apply for the purposes of the NRWT rules when—

(a) a person (the borrower) is—

(i) resident in New Zealand; or

(ii) a non-resident carrying on a business in New Zealand through a fixed establishment in New Zealand; and

(b) the borrower is party to a financial arrangement with a non-resident (the lender) through which funding is provided to the borrower, other than funding provided by the lender through a fixed establishment in New Zealand; and

(c) the financial arrangement—

(i) gives rise to non-resident passive income under section RF 2(1)(a)(iv); or

(ii) would give rise to income referred to in subparagraph (i) in the absence of section RF 2(2B)(c).

Meaning of non-resident financial arrangement income

(2) Non-resident financial arrangement income, for a financial arrangement and an income year, means an amount having a source in New Zealand that is accrued on a related-party debt and derived by a lender in the income year when—

(a) non-resident financial arrangement income was derived in relation to the arrangement by a lender in an earlier income year; or

(b) the following requirements are met for the income year:

(i) the total expenditure incurred by the borrower on related-party debt is more than the de minimis set out in subsection (3); and

(ii) in relation to the financial arrangement, the deferral calculation set out in subsection (4) is less than 90%.

Related-party de minimis

(3) The de minimis applies when the total expenditure on all related-party debt incurred in the previous income year under the financial arrangements rules by the borrower, and all companies that are in the same group of companies as the borrower, is $40,000 or less.

Deferral calculation

(4) Subject to subsection (6), the deferral calculation referred to in subsection (2)(b)(ii) is the percentage calculated using the formula—accumulated payments ÷ (accumulated accruals − hybrid deductions).

Definition of items in formula

(5) In the formula,—

(a) accumulated payments for the income year is the total interest paid in relation to the financial arrangement by the borrower for the period that—

(i) starts on the day on which the financial arrangement first meets the requirements for a related-party debt; and

(ii) ends on the NRFAI due date for the borrower's income year:

(b) accumulated accruals is an amount equal to the total expenditure that the borrower incurs under the arrangement when the arrangement is a related-party debt for the period that—

(i) starts on the day on which the financial arrangement first meets the requirements for a related-party debt; and

(ii) ends on the last day of the income year before the income year referred to in paragraph (a)(ii):

(c) hybrid deductions is an amount equal to the part of the expenditure that the borrower incurs under the arrangement in the period given by paragraph (b) that has been denied as a deduction under subpart FH (Hybrid and branch mismatches of deductions and income from multi-jurisdictional arrangements) when the expenditure is incurred and is not allowed as a deduction under the subpart in that period, on the date referred to in paragraph (b)(ii).

When calculation treated as more than 90%

(6) For the purposes of the calculation in subsection (4), the result of the formula is treated as more than 90% if—

(a) the item accumulated accruals is equal to the item hybrid deductions:

(b) the date in subsection (5)(b)(ii) occurs before the date in subsection (5)(b)(i).

NRFAI due date

(7) The NRFAI due date, for a financial arrangement, is the due date for the payment of NRWT for the period that ends on the last day of the second month following the end of an income year.

Foreign exchange movements

(8) For the purposes of subsections (4) and (5), the calculation of total interest and total expenditure must be made in the currency of the financial arrangement.

Choosing to disregard de minimis and deferral calculation

(9) See section RF 12G for elections to disregard the related-party de minimis and the deferral calculation.

Example

Three years ago, NZ Sub A Ltd (A) borrowed NZ$1m from a non-resident associate (Foreign Lender Ltd). A's financial arrangement expenditure on this arrangement for each year has been $42,000, $50,000 and $53,000. For the same 3-year period, A has paid interest of $19,000, $20,000 and $21,000. At the end of the second year, the deferral calculation is ($19,000 + $20,000) ÷ $42,000 = 92.9%, so no NRFAI arises. However, at the end of the third year the deferral calculation is ($19,000 + $20,000 + $21,000) ÷ ($42,000 + $50,000) = 65.2%. As this is below 90%, NRFAI arises for the first time in the third year. The NRFAI will be treated as paid under section RF 12E on the last day of the second month after A's balance date.

Withholding obligations

RF 3 Obligation to withhold amounts of tax for non-resident passive income

Withholding amount of tax

(1) A person who makes a payment of non-resident passive income must withhold the amount of tax for the payment and pay it to the Commissioner. The obligation to withhold arises under section RA 6(2) (Withholding and payment obligations for passive income) at the time of payment.

Payments derived by non-resident partners

(1B) For the purposes of subsection (1), when a payment of non-resident passive income, being interest that has a New Zealand source, is derived by a non-resident as a limited partner in a limited partnership, the limited partnership may choose to be treated as the person who makes the payment of that non-resident passive income to the extent of that payment.

Payments made by limited partners

(1C) For the purposes of subsection (1), when a person makes a payment of non-resident passive income that consists of interest as a limited partner in a limited partnership, the limited partnership may choose to be treated as the person who makes the payment of that non-resident passive income to the extent of that payment.

Election by limited partnerships

(1D) A limited partnership is treated as having made an election under subsection (1B) or (1C) if the limited partnership withholds and pays the tax to the Commissioner under subsection (1) in relation to that payment.

Election before payment made

(1E) Despite subsection (1D), a limited partnership is also treated as having made an election under subsection (1B) if the limited partnership notifies the Commissioner before a payment of non-resident passive income referred to in that subsection is made that the limited partnership chooses to be treated as the person who makes that payment.

Exclusion

(2) Despite subsection (1), no obligation to withhold NRWT arises in relation to an amount treated as a dividend under section GB 1(3) (Arrangements involving dividend stripping).

Defined in this Act: amount, amount of tax, Commissioner, dividend, interest, limited partner, limited partnership, New Zealand, non-resident, non-resident passive income, NRWT, pay

RF 4 Non-resident passive income received by agents and others

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when—

(a) an agent, custodial institution, or other person in New Zealand receives a payment of non-resident passive income on behalf of a person entitled to the payment; and

(b) some or all of the amount of tax for the payment has not been withheld.

Obligation to withhold: agent, custodial institution, or other person

(2) The agent, custodial institution, or other person must withhold the amount of tax referred to in subsection (1)(b) for the payment and pay it to the Commissioner. The obligation to withhold arises at the time of receipt.

Notifying agent, custodial institution, or other person

(3) If, in the circumstances described in subsection (1)(a), the person paying the non-resident passive income has withheld the amount of tax for the payment, they must notify the agent, custodial institution, or other person of the amount withheld. Notification must be made at the time the payment is made.

Agreements to transfer withholding obligations: outsourcing withholding

(4) A custodial institution that is required to withhold an amount of tax for a payment may, before the date on which the payment is received by the institution, enter into an agreement with another person (person B) for person B to withhold the amount of tax and pay it to the Commissioner. However, if person B does not withhold the amount of tax and pay it to the Commissioner, the withholding obligation remains with the custodial institution.

Agreements to transfer withholding obligations: passing obligation to other custodial institutions

(5) When a payment of investment income is paid on or transferred through interposed custodial institutions before being paid to an end investor, the custodial institution that is last in the chain may enter into an agreement with another custodial institution that precedes them in the chain, for the latter institution to withhold the amount of tax for the payment and pay it to the Commissioner. In this case, the withholding obligation passes to the latter institution, and the final custodial institution's obligation is discharged.

Defined in this Act: amount, amount of tax, Commissioner, custodial institution, end investor, investment income, New Zealand, non-resident passive income, notify, pay

RF 11BB Certain dividends paid to dual resident companies

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when a company makes a payment of non-resident passive income in the form of a dividend to a New Zealand resident company (the recipient) that is treated under a double tax agreement as not being resident in New Zealand to the extent to which the dividend is not fully imputed, if—

(c) the recipient becomes a company that is not a foreign company before the DRCD deferral date.

Amount of tax

(2) The amount of tax is the lesser of—

(a) the amount of tax that the payer would be required to withhold and pay in the absence of this section; and

Application of double tax agreement and NRWT rules to amount

(2) The double tax agreement and the NRWT rules apply to the amount as being interest, despite any provision in the double tax agreement that would otherwise require the amount to be treated as being a dividend.

Defined in this Act: amount, company, dividend, double tax agreement, interest, New Zealand, non-resident passive income, NRWT rules, pay, tax

Section RF 11C: inserted (with effect on 1 April 2008), on 27 June 2018, by section 47(1) (and see section 47(2) for application) of the Taxation (Neutralising Base Erosion and Profit Shifting) Act 2018 (2018 No 16).

(iv) if the interest relates to related-party debt, is derived at a time when the person is not associated with the approved issuer other than as a beneficiary of a security trust or as a partner of a partnership that is a beneficiary of a security trust, and the funding provided by the lender under the related-party debt does not meet the requirements in section RF 12H(1)(a)(ii), and the lender does not meet the requirements in section RF 12H(1)(a)(iii):

(b) interest that—

(i) is paid by a transitional resident in relation to money borrowed by them while non-resident; and

RF 12B Interest derived jointly with residents

When payment derived jointly with resident

(1) If a person makes a payment of non-resident passive income that consists of interest derived by 2 or more persons jointly and at least 1 person deriving the interest is a New Zealand resident, the amount of tax for the payment is calculated using the formula—

(tax rate × (interest paid + foreign withholding tax)) − foreign withholding tax.

Definition of items in formula

(2) In the formula,—

(a) tax rate is the basic rate set out in schedule 1, part D, clause 3 or 4 (Basic tax rates: income tax, ESCT, RSCT, RWT, and attributed fringe benefits):

(b) interest paid is the amount of interest paid before the amount of tax is determined:

(c) foreign withholding tax is the amount of foreign withholding tax paid or payable on the amount of interest paid.

Treatment as filing taxpayer

(3) For the purposes of this section, the New Zealand resident referred to in subsection (1) is treated as a filing taxpayer.

Interest derived by partners of partnerships

(4) Interest derived by 2 or more persons jointly includes interest derived by partners in a partnership.

Exclusion

(5) Despite subsection (1), this section does not apply to a payment of non-resident passive income that consists of interest derived by a non-resident as a limited partner in a limited partnership when 1 or more of the partners in that partnership is a New Zealand resident.

Defined in this Act: amount, amount of tax, filing taxpayer, foreign withholding tax, interest, limited partner, limited partnership, New Zealand resident, non-resident, non-resident passive income, partner, partnership, pay

RF 12C Amount derived from non-resident life insurer becoming resident

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when an amount of non-resident passive income is—

(a) derived by a life insurer from a company resident in New Zealand; and

(b) treated as income as a result of the granting of the insurer's application under section EY 49 (Non-resident life insurer becoming resident).

Zero-rating

(2) The rate of NRWT payable on the amount is 0%.

Defined in this Act: amount, apply, company, life insurer, New Zealand, non-resident passive income, NRWT, pay, resident in New Zealand

Compare: 2004 No 35 s NG 2(1)(b)(iii)

Section RF 12C: inserted (with effect on 1 April 2008), on 6 October 2009, by section 536(1) of the Taxation (International Taxation, Life Insurance, and Remedial Matters) Act 2009 (2009 No 34).

Certain financial arrangements involving related-party debt

Heading: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

RF 12D Determining amount of non-resident financial arrangement income

Amount of income

(1) The amount of non-resident financial arrangement income derived by a lender in an income year is an amount equal to the expenditure incurred in the income year on the related-party debt by the borrower.

Applying general rule

(2) Subsections (3), (4), (5), (6), and (7) apply for the purposes of subsection (1) and sections RF 2B, RF 2C, RF 12E to RF 12J, and RZ 13 (Treatment of prepayments).

Expenditure

(3) Expenditure excludes an amount that may be an expense of the borrower under the arrangement but is not, and will not be, an amount received by the lender.

Spreading method

(4) For financial arrangements involving related-party debt, the spreading method that must be applied in determining the amount incurred is the method used by the borrower for the financial arrangement under subpart EW (Financial arrangements rules) excluding the following methods for which another spreading method must be substituted:

(a) the fair value method:

(b) the market valuation method under section EW 18 (Market valuation method).

Foreign exchange movements

(5) The calculation of total interest and total expenditure must be made in the currency of the financial arrangement.

When lender's income zero

(6) In the calculation of non-resident financial arrangement income, if the borrower has income on the related-party debt, the amount derived by the lender is treated as zero.

Part years

(7) For the purposes of subsection (1), a reference to an income year includes a reference to a part of an income year.

Example

NZ Sub B Ltd (B) has borrowed US$100m from its non-resident parent and will repay US$125m in 5 years' time. Calculated in US dollars, the financial arrangement expenditure for each year is US$4m, US$4.5m, US$5m, US$5.5m, and US$6m respectively. B must calculate NRFAI in US dollars for each year then, for the purposes of paying NRWT, convert this into NZ dollars using the currency conversion in subpart YF (Currency conversion). B has also entered into a hedge to buy US$125m in 5 years' time for NZ$200m. Because the hedge does not give rise to interest or NRFAI, income or expenditure relating to the hedge is excluded from B's NRWT calculations.

Defined in this Act: amount, expenditure, fair value method, financial arrangement, income, income year, non-resident financial arrangement income, related-party debt, spreading method

Section RF 12D: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

RF 12E When non-resident financial arrangement income treated as paid

Amount paid

(1) An amount of non-resident financial arrangement income is treated as paid on the last day of the second month following the end of the borrower's income year.

When debt matures, ends, or no longer qualifies

(2) Despite subsection (1), if a related-party debt matures, ends, or no longer qualifies as a related-party debt during the borrower's income year, the non-resident financial arrangement income is treated as paid on the last day of the second month following the relevant event.

Defined in this Act: amount, income year, non-resident financial arrangement income, pay, related-party debt

Section RF 12E: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

RF 12F Adjustments: first year additional amounts

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the first income year in which a lender derives non-resident financial arrangement income under a financial arrangement. It increases the lender's income by adding an amount that the lender would have derived if the financial arrangement had always given rise to non-resident financial arrangement income.

Formula

(2) The amount is calculated using the formula—

total accrual income − total interest.

Definition of items in formula

(3) In the formula,—

(a) total accrual income is the total expenditure incurred by the borrower under the arrangement to the extent to which the arrangement is held by a non-resident person for the period that—

(i) starts on the date on which the borrower became party to the arrangement; and

(ii) ends on the last day of the income year that precedes the first income year:

(b) total interest is the total interest paid by the borrower to all non-residents for the period that—

(i) starts on the date on which the borrower became party to the arrangement; and

(ii) ends on the NRFAI due date for the borrower's income year.

Example continued from section RF 2C

Foreign Lender Ltd has derived NRFAI for the first time in the third year of a loan to NZ Sub A Ltd (A). The NRFAI derived for this year is equal to A's financial arrangement expenditure for the third year of $53,000. However, as this year is the first in which Foreign Lender Ltd has derived NRFAI on this related-party debt, it also derives an additional amount of ($42,000 + $50,000) – ($19,000 + $20,000 + $21,000) = $32,000.

Defined in this Act: amount, financial arrangement, income, income year, interest, non-resident, non-resident financial arrangement income, NRFAI due date, NRWT, pay, related-party debt

Section RF 12F: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

RF 12G Choosing to treat income as non-resident financial arrangement income

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the first income year in which the borrower is party to a financial arrangement described in section RF 2C(1)(b).

Elections related to de minimis

(2) The borrower may choose to disregard the application of the related-party de minimis referred to in section RF 2C(3).

Elections related to deferral calculation

(3) Despite section RF 2C(4), if the result of the deferral calculation by the borrower is, or is treated as, more than 90%, they may choose to disregard the application of the calculation for an arrangement—

(a) that is for a period of more than 12 months; and

(b) in relation to which they reasonably expect non-resident financial arrangement income will arise for a later income year.

Making elections

(4) The election must be made by notifying the Commissioner by the earlier of—

(a) the first day on which interest described in section RF 2(1)(a)(iv) is paid:

(b) the last day of the income year in which the arrangement becomes a related-party debt.

Example

NZ Sub C Ltd (C) has borrowed $500,000 from its non-resident parent. Although interest accrues on this loan, C does not expect to make any interest payments for some years. C has also borrowed from a bank but has no other related-party loans. C's expected financial arrangement expenditure on the related-party debt for the first 3 years is $32,000, $36,000 and $41,000. C will not have to calculate whether NRFAI arises until the end of the third year as this is when the related party de minimis is reached. However, C expects that once the related party de minimis is reached, NRFAI will arise because there are expected to be no interest payments. Therefore, C notifies Inland Revenue during the first year, that it will withhold NRWT on NRFAI from the start of the first year.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, financial arrangement, income year, inform, interest, non-resident financial arrangement income, notify, related-party debt

Section RF 12G: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

Section RF 12G(4)(a): amended (with effect on 30 August 2022), on 31 March 2023, by section 112 of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2022–23, Platform Economy, and Remedial Matters) Act 2023 (2023 No 5).

RF 12H Meaning of related-party debt

Meaning of related-party debt

(1) Related-party debt means a financial arrangement under which—

(a) a person (the lender) is party to an arrangement that provides funds to another person (the borrower) when—

(i) the lender and borrower are associated persons; or

(ii) the funding is provided through an indirect associated funding arrangement, as described in section RF 12I(2); or

(iii) the lender is a member of a non-resident owning body that is associated with the borrower, as described in section RF 12I(3); and

(b) expenditure arises for the borrower for which they are allowed a deduction.

New Zealand banking group exclusion

(2) Subsection (1), other than paragraph (a)(ii), does not apply to a financial arrangement to which a member of a New Zealand banking group as determined under section FE 33 (New Zealand banking group) is party.

Associated persons

(3) When subsection (1)(a)(iii) applies, the borrower and the member of the non-resident owning body are treated as if they were associated for the purposes of this section, and sections RF 2C, RF 12, RF 12D to RF 12G, RF 12I, and RF 12J and section 32M of the Tax Administration Act 1994.

Defined in this Act: amount, associated person, deduction, financial arrangement, income year, New Zealand banking group, non-resident owning body, related-party debt

Section RF 12H: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

RF 12I Concepts used for definition of related-party debt

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of section RF 12H to describe what is meant by indirect associated funding arrangements and funding through non-resident owning bodies.

Indirect associated funding arrangements

(2) An indirect associated funding arrangement exists when—

(a) a non-resident person (the indirect lender) provides funds or pays money, directly or indirectly, to another person (the direct lender) who provides funds to a third person (the borrower)—

(i) in order for the funds to be provided to the borrower, or to reimburse the direct lender or compensate them, for providing the funds to the borrower; and

(ii) with the purpose or effect that the borrower incurs financial arrangement expenditure and the indirect lender does not derive non-resident passive income from the borrower; and

(b) the indirect lender is associated with the borrower; and

(c) the funding does not meet the requirements of section RF 12H(1)(a)(i) and (iii) for related-party debt.

Non-resident owning bodies

(3) A non-resident owning body is treated as associated with a borrower when the ownership interest, within the meaning set out in paragraph (a) of the definition of that term, in the borrower of all the members of the non-resident owning body is 50% or more.

Examples

NZ Sub D Ltd (D) borrows $1m at an interest rate of 6% from 3rd Party Finance Co Ltd (Finance Co) which agrees to provide this amount because D International, a non-resident associate of D, agrees to lend $800,000 at an interest rate of 4% to Finance Co. This is treated as a loan of $800,000 from D International to D, and a loan of $200,000 from Finance Co to D. D makes an interest payment of $60,000 to Finance Co, and Finance Co makes an interest payment of $32,000 to D International. D is treated as making an interest payment of $32,000 to Finance Co as agent for D International, so must withhold $3,200 NRWT. If D does not, Finance Co will be required to do so.

Two unrelated foreign investors agree to purchase 40% each of a New Zealand company with the remaining 20% held by a New Zealand investor. The New Zealand company has borrowed $1m, with the amounts being $400,000 from each of the foreign investors and $200,000 from the New Zealand investor and all borrowing is on similar terms. The 2 foreign investors are members of a non-resident owning body as they are acting together as if they were a single entity. Neither foreign investor is associated with the New Zealand business, either individually or as a consequence of being a member of the non-resident owning body. However, because they are members of the non-resident owning body, interest payments derived by the foreign investors will be ineligible for AIL and the loans may give rise to non-resident financial arrangement income.

Defined in this Act: arrangement, associated person, interest, non-resident, non-resident owning body, non-resident passive income, ownership interest, pay, related-party debt

Section RF 12I: inserted, on 30 March 2017, by section 279 (and see section 5) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 (2017 No 14).

RL 1 Residential land withholding tax

What this subpart does

(1) This subpart imposes an obligation to pay a tax called residential land withholding tax (RLWT).

When this subpart applies

(2) This subpart applies for a residential land purchase amount in relation to a disposal of residential land located in New Zealand by a person (the vendor) to another person (the purchaser) if—

(a) the relevant residential land purchase amount would be income of the vendor under section CB 6A (Disposal within 2 years: bright-line test for residential land) ignoring sections CB 6A(5)(a) and CB 16A (Main home exclusion for disposal within 2 years); and

(b) the vendor is an offshore RLWT person.

How this subpart applies to joint owners

(3) For the purposes of this subpart, vendors who are co-owners are treated as disposing of separate residential land on the basis of an appropriate split of the underlying residential land and the consideration for its disposal.

When this subpart does not apply

(4) This subpart does not apply if the vendor holds an RLWT certificate of exemption that applies for the disposal of the relevant residential land. Section 54E of the Tax Administration Act 1994 provides for the issue of RLWT certificates of exemption to vendors.

When this subpart does not apply: relationship property

(4B) This subpart does not apply if section FB 3A(2) (Residential land) applies for the disposal of the relevant residential land.

Specific rules

(5) In this subpart,—

(a) section RL 2 provides rules for vendors and conveyancers in relation to who must pay RLWT and satisfy RLWT liability:

(b) section RL 3 provides rules for purchasers in relation to who must withhold RLWT from relevant residential land purchase amounts. It also provides rules for segregating the RLWT withheld:

(c) section RL 4 provides rules for calculating how much tax must be paid or withheld and paid for residential land purchase amounts:

(d) section RL 5 provides rules for paying RLWT:

(e) section RL 6 provides rules for the Commissioner repaying RLWT.

Return and information provisions in Tax Administration Act 1994

(6) Sections 54B, 54C, and 54D of the Tax Administration Act 1994 provide for the giving of returns and information in relation to RLWT obligations.

Defined in this Act: dispose, land, offshore RLWT person, residential land, residential land purchase amount, RLWT, RLWT certificate of exemption

RL 2 Vendors: who must pay, and how?

Liability of vendor

(1) The vendor is liable to pay the amount of RLWT provided in section RL 4.

Conveyancers: agency for RLWT obligations

(2) The vendor's conveyancer, or if the vendor does not have a conveyancer, the purchaser's conveyancer, is treated as the agent (the paying agent) of the vendor in relation to the RLWT, and, in relation to the RLWT, must provide returns and satisfy the vendor's liability.

Conveyancers: no agency for other obligations

(3) The paying agent is not treated as the vendor's agent for income, or for a tax obligation other than RLWT, solely because of their agency in relation to RLWT.

Conveyancers: relationship with subject matter

(4) Sections HD 2, HD 3, and HD 4 (which relate to agents) do not apply to a paying agent that is agent only in relation to RLWT.

Liability of conveyancers

(5) The paying agent, as agent in relation to the RLWT, is not jointly and severally liable in relation to the vendor's RLWT or in relation to a debt under section RA 10 (When obligations not met). The vendor alone is liable to pay the RLWT, despite the paying agent's obligation to satisfy the vendor's liability.

Liability of conveyancers: exception for penalties

(6) Despite subsection (5), if the paying agent fails to satisfy the vendor's liability, then,—

(a) for the purposes of Part 9 of the Tax Administration Act 1994, the paying agent is treated as failing to pay an amount of withholding tax equal to the amount of RLWT liability they failed to satisfy, if the paying agent has subtracted or retained an amount from a residential land purchase amount; or

(b) for the purposes of Part 9 of the Tax Administration Act 1994 other than section 139B, the paying agent is treated as failing to pay an amount of withholding tax equal to the amount of RLWT liability they failed to satisfy, if the paying agent has not subtracted or retained an amount from a residential land purchase amount.

Liability of conveyancers: reasonable reliance

(7) A paying agent is not liable for a penalty under Part 9 of the Tax Administration Act 1994 for a failure described in subsection (6)(b) if, for that failure,—

(a) the paying agent has relied on a form and accompanying documents given to them in accordance with section 54C of the Tax Administration Act 1994; and

(b) the paying agent's reliance on the form and accompanying documents is reasonable.

Treatment of amount

(8) An amount subtracted or retained from a residential land purchase amount by a paying agent to satisfy the vendor's RLWT liability—

(a) is treated as received—

(i) by the vendor; and

(ii) at the time the residential land purchase amount is paid to them; and

(b) is treated for the purposes of this Act as derived by the vendor at the same time and in the same way as they derive the residential land purchase amount.

Defined in this Act: agent, amount, amount of tax, Commissioner, conveyancer, pay, residential land purchase amount, RLWT

RL 3 Associated persons: who must pay, and how?

Despite section RL 2, if the vendor and purchaser are associated persons—

(a) the vendor is not liable to pay the amount of RLWT provided in section RL 4; and

(b) the purchaser must withhold the amount of RLWT provided in section RL 4.

Defined in this Act: amount, associated person, RLWT, RLWT rules

RL 4 How much RLWT?

How much tax?

(1) The total amount (RLWT) that the relevant person described in section RL 2 or RL 3 must pay or withhold for residential land purchase amounts is equal to the lesser of the amounts described in subsections (2), (4), and (6). The RLWT is paid or withheld for each residential land purchase amount, up to the maximum of the relevant residential land purchase amount. All amounts in this section are GST exclusive.

Calculation of amount

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), the amount is the greater of zero and the amount calculated using the formula—

RLWT rate × (current purchase price − vendor's acquisition cost).

Definition of items in formula

(3) In the formula in subsection (2),—

(a) RLWT rate means the rate provided in schedule 1, part A, clause 1, table 1, row 5 or, if the vendor is a company that is not acting as a trustee, the rate provided in schedule 1, part A, clause 2:

0.10 × current purchase price.

Definition of item in formula

(5) In the formula in subsection (4), current purchase price has the same meaning as in subsection (3)(b).

Calculation of amount

(6) For the purposes of subsection (1), the amount is the greater of zero and the amount calculated using the formula—current purchase price − security discharge amount − outstanding rates.

Definition of items in formula

(7) In the formula in subsection (6),—

(a) current purchase price has the same meaning as in subsection (3)(b):

(b) security discharge amount is—

(i) zero, if paragraph (ii) does not apply:

(ii) the total of the amounts required by licensed security holders to discharge their mortgages or other securities over the residential land, if the relevant person who must pay RLWT is the vendor or the vendor's conveyancer:

(c) outstanding rates is the amount of local authority rates outstanding.

A definition

(8) In this section, licensed security holder means a person who has a mortgage or other security over the relevant residential land, if that person is—

(i) no obligation to withhold NRWT has arisen in relation to the arrangement before the date of enactment; or

(ii) approved issuer levy has been paid in relation to the arrangement before the date of enactment; and

(c) the arrangement would be a related-party debt if sections RF 12H to RF 12J (which relate to related-party debt) had applied to the arrangement before the date of enactment; and

(d) the person is party to the arrangement on or after the date of enactment.

When excess treated as paid

(2) If, at the date on which section 273(1) of the Taxation (Annual Rates for 2016–17, Closely Held Companies, and Remedial Matters) Act 2017 applies in relation to the arrangement, the total interest paid under the arrangement is more than the total expenditure accrued by the person on the arrangement, the excess interest is treated as paid on that date.

Foreign exchange treatment

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2) and an arrangement that is denominated in a foreign currency, the calculation of total interest and total expenditure must be made in the currency of the arrangement and the excess converted to New Zealand dollars under subpart YF (Currency conversion).

Example

On 1 April 2010, X Ltd borrowed $1m from Foreign Parent Ltd, repayable on 31 March 2025. Foreign Parent also has a New Zealand branch. On 31 March each year from 2011 to 2016, X makes an interest payment of $60,000 to Foreign Parent. As Foreign Parent has a New Zealand branch, these interest payments are not non-resident passive income, so no NRWT is required to be withheld. Once the amendments to section RF 2(1)(d) are enacted, any interest payments by X to Foreign Parent will be non-resident passive income. On 30 September 2016, X makes a one-off interest payment of $400,000 and agrees with Foreign Parent that no further interest will be paid. X calculates that $35,000 of this payment covers the period from 1 April 2016 to the date on which the amendments to section RF 2(1)(d) are enacted. The remaining $365,000 is treated as a prepayment that is paid on the date of enactment, so X is required to withhold NRWT of $36,500.

Defined in this Act: amount, approved issuer, financial arrangement, income year, interest, NRWT, NRWT rules, pay, related-party debt, resident in New Zealand
